FOOD QUALITY

Quality is a word we often hear when talking about food, particularly when the product is found in the market or on the table.

Yet the basic concept of quality can be hard to define, especially when we lack knowledge of the strides taken by science and technology in the field of food and nutrition in the last two centuries.

In the dark years of the world wars, mankind was engaged in more vital questions; however, quite soon after World War II, the WHO sanctioned a statement of universal validity: "Health does not refer only to the absence of illness but includes also complete physical, social and mental welfare."

This sounded not only like the heralding of a new era but looked like a precept to conform with in defining priorities and the rules of intervention, e.g. FQ assessment.

Today, the territories we are moving into are becoming even larger so that FQ defined only in terms of salubrity and safety is not enough. As well as this opening of western counties toward new civilizations, consumers are manifesting a new awareness of the influence of food on mood, efficiency at work, and life-style, thus, producing novel compromises between hedonistic needs, dietary needs and safety guarantees.

Market dobalization is determining a new awareness among the experts, bringing with it the tendency to refer to FQ as total food quality (TFQ).

The best way to define this new concept would be to group and classify the basic factors comprising TFQ.

In conclusion, TFQ is a partly objective concept; we are assessing properties like nutritional quality, safety of use, shelf-life, etc., which are not strictly related to the human senses.

In any case, definition and appraisal of TFQ standards are not only bound to the raw materials employed but also to technological processing and gastronomic preparations.

But also a partly subjective concept; the consumer is the main instrument of appraisal of the sensory properties of the product, immediately perceived by the human senses.

OUR COMPANY

Since the establishment of Siena Foods in 1992 the company has maintained a strong passion for sourcing and delivering the best quality food products to meet the daily requirements of food lovers across many cultures, in all corners of the world.

Founders, Dominic and Melina Mercuri (the Mercuri family) place an emphasis on personnel development, product development and food innovation which has provided the foundations for the long term growth of the business.

In addition, Siena Foods has now proudly forged a faithful network of world-leading producers and manufacturers, to create a portfolio of value-for-money, premium products across many categories.

The Mercuri family has a very close association with their home country, Italy. This is where the family inherited their love of food after generations of family members passed on traditional recipes and food production processes. In order to maintain this special connection and to remain at the forefront of product development and distribution, the Mercuri family has established facilities in Italy to further assist in identifying new food trends and importantly provide an administrative and a logistic base to service the northern hemisphere.

Siena Foods will continue to seek trading partners across the globe whom have the same desire and passion to meet the growing demands of food lovers in their part of the world.

Because, at Siena Foods, we put flavour in your kitchen.

Traditional Italian Balsamic Vinegar of Modena is a thick, sweet-smelling vinegar made from a reduction of cooked grape must.

The resulting syrup is then aged in wooden barrels that imparts character to the vinegar.

White Balsamic Vinegar Condiment is made from a white grape must, blended with wine vinegar then cooked at a lower temperature to avoid any darkening.

The flavours of the two are very similar, although the traditional balsamic is slightly sweeter and tends to be a little more syrupy.

Beautiful slices of Italian grown eggplant, marinated and packed in oil.

Make the perfect antipasto with these eggplant strips, along with Siena sundried tomatoes, marinated mushrooms and artichokes.

Siena marinated eggplant fillets are even wonderful on a sandwich!

Capers are measured and described by their diameter in millimetres, the smallest 'lilliput' are 3-4mm and medium are 7-9mm

Capers are the unopened flower bud of the Capparis Spinosa bush found in the Mediterranean region.

The buds are picked and pickled in brine, providing a salty and slightly sour flavour.

Siena consumer caper packs are a product of Spain whereas Siena 2kg foodservice capers are a product of Turkey.

MOZZARELLA

These are exquisite soft cheeses made with love and dedication, using traditions and secrets passed down from generation to generation.

A modern production plant adheres to the most advanced European regulations for safety and hygiene, so you get the best of both worlds.

Buffalo milk is richer than the milk produced by cows with higher levels of protein and fat, resulting in a richer mozzarella.

Whether it's made from buffalo or cow's milk, the best way to enjoy young mozzarella is to simply drizzle it with a good quality extra virgin olive oil.

You can also enjoy it with fresh tomato and basil.

ITALIAN PARMA & SPANISH SERRANO PROSCIUTTO

Prosciutto di Parma is the gold standard of Italian prosciutto.

Produced only in the Italian province of Parma whose regional idiosyncrasies make it possible to produce the highest quality hams using only four ingredients; specially-bred and fed Italian pigs, sea salt, air and the most important ingredient - time.

Every leg of Prosciutto di Parma is 100 percent natural, with no additives or preservatives.

It's easily traceable through all stages of production and protected by the Instituto Parma Qualita (IPQ).

Every leg is identified by its famous logo, the Ducal Crown, the final branding and last step in the identification process that not only guarantees the highest quality and authenticity but leaves the "signature" of each operator.

ITALIAN ROASTED COFFEE BEANS

Just like our other fine food products, Siena Coffee uses the best available ingredients.

We take high quality Robusta and Arabica coffee beans, freshly roast and vacuum seal them in Italy for maximum freshness.

Available in two varieties:

Siena Italian Espresso Blend Coffee Beans are dark roasted and are ideal for making intense espresso coffee - long or short black - the traditional Italian way.

Siena Caffé Crema Blend Coffee Beans are medium roasted, making them ideal for caffè latte and cappuccino afficiendos. They have a rich aroma with a sweet, smooth aftertaste.

PITTED CHERRIES

Imported from Hungary, Siena Morello cherries are tart in flavour and bright red in color and are ideal for baking.

Pile them in a pie crust, top with sugar, and bake until tender and juicy, bake up a sour cherry cobbler or use them in a Black Forest cake.

Whichever way you choose, they're delicious!

B-WELL 100% FRESHLY SQUEEZED JUICE

Many fruit juices are made from concentrates - not B-Well!

Squeezed from freshly-picked fruit and bottled immediately, B-Well 100% freshly squeezed juice has no added sugar - or any other nasties.

What it does have is an abundance of the anti-oxidants and vitamin C found naturally in cherries and pomegranates, making it ideal for the whole family.
